

Dear Diary,

Today was the best day ever. Why? Because I got a puppy!

He's the best dog ever! He is just like me; he is missing a leg. His name is Spark because it suits him a lot. His fur is soft and golden. Spark is energetic and he is super funny. My puppy loves to play tug of war and fetch (he loves to play with his red ball). Spark sleeps on my bed and he curls up next to me which is very cute.

The day started off horribly, it was cold and wet outside. As it was the weekend, I went downstairs to play a game on my Xbox. Mum had to leave early again for work but as it was the weekend it didn't bother me. My whole morning was spent playing the game; I won a ton of matches.

Then Mum came back after I ate my spaghetti hoops and left the box on the table. At first, I didn't like him as he was missing a leg but then I realised about how similar we are. He took me outside to play fetch and tug of war, we played for the rest of the afternoon. For dinner Mum cooked pizza.

The best part was at sunset. I sat outside with mum, spark sat on my lap, we watched the sun go down. Then I climbed in bed with spark and slept.
