

GIRL MISSING!

The unfortunate disappearance of Francis Brandywine on a late summer night under the starless sky in Quetico Adventure Park by the border of Minnesota and Canada has struck many rumours about the Camp Site Owner who wishes to not be named. The campsite is known for its wide range of wild animals which roam the park, late in the evenings and its deep lake which had water so pristine you could drink straight from it. The deep part of this particular lake also was rumoured to reach down to 300ft. It is believed she had taken out the boat onto the river late at night. No-one knows what happened but there were many frantic scribbles in her diary and a note at the end which seemed to be written in a muddy finger. The two ores and the lantern which were in the boat the previous night were gone.

Her diary was thoroughly searched by experts, but no clues were found except for the words 'bang' 'knock, knock' and the words written in the muddy finger 'I DID KNOCK FIRST'. The rest was just frantic scribbles filling the page with ink and tears on the corner of the pages. The boat was found at shore next to the rickety bridge built out to it. The seats were ripped apart and the rim on top had looked like it had been slashed with a knife. The only remains were the diary.

Her parents were reported saying "I am so heartbroken yet confused how this has happened. This campsite needs to introduce more safety measures, or I am suing"

The police reassuringly quoted "We are in deep sorrow for the parents and family of Francis but we are confused as most other people at how this has happened as the suspect has left no clues behind but we are sure we have this under control"

If any information is found or Brandywine is spotted please do call 071-FRA-NCIS.

Article By Leo Knowles

